

While The Sun Is Turning Black

Vision Divine

While the dawn comes in gently
And the Moon says goodbye
There the Sun comes already
The night goes, in the blink of an eye

As I wait for the new day to come
As the Nature slowly awakes
I feel my life has gone away

Sun
Why don't you bring some light down here?
This World is way too dark for me
The more I try to rise
The more I'm falling down
While your Star is turning black

Every night from the window
There's a ceiling of distant stars
They look like my own sorrow
While they're falling in the dark
And soon they're no more

They could make the whole universe shine
But they're falling one by one
Fading into the dark

Sun
Why don't you bring some light down here?
This World is way too dark for me
The more I try to rise
The more I'm falling down
While your star is turning black
