

Empty World

Volturian

Can't see tomorrow I see no future for me
Down deep in sorrow I buried all of my sins
Someday I followed the rabbit down in the hole
To find places never seen life I never lived
Doors I never tried to keep
Open so I could escape and see
What was behind it ever seemed like a real world

Can't you see your life is a mistake
You're walking on the line they draw below your feet?
From a screen where everyone could feel
The king of his own hill fragile souls in an empty world

The words you borrow sound like a broken promise
Your eyes are hollowed could be more honest?
All lies I swallowed made me stronger than you
So today I'll leave the roof and break the mirror's edge
To see what's over the ledge
And try to be all new or someone else
Waiting for you to do the same and realize

Can't you see your life is a mistake
You're walking on the line they draw below your feet?
From a screen where everyone could feel
The king of his own hill fragile souls in an empty world

Can't you see your life is a mistake
You're walking on the line they draw below your feet?
From a screen where everyone could feel
The king of his own hill fragile souls in an empty world