

The Aftermath

Wage War

I can't believe what I see
Miles of bodies, lifeless they sleep
This isn't war; this is murder

I fight for my independence
The rule of the tyrant has become overwhelming
There is no sun in the sky
We're running low on supplies
The general has just commanded
Don't fire till you see the whites of their eyes
No shot can be wasted
Don't fire till you see the whites of their eyes
No shot can be wasted

There will be no survivors
They never will see the break of dawn
There will be no survivors
They never will see the break of dawn

This nation has been torn in two
The battlefield is painted red over the grey and blue
On the other end of my gun, my brothers stare into this barrel of fate
My eyes are shut; I pray to God that you're safe

There will be no survivors
They never will see the break of dawn
There's no turning back
Every life that you take is a life that you've saved
Here at the turn of the tides
This is the second war to consume the world
Murder of the innocent
A man as corrupt as the one who spawned his actions
I'm sworn to my country to follow my orders
Save who you can; bury the dead

I can't hold this together
This can't be real
How did it come to this?
I can't hold this together
This can't be real
How did it come to this?

There will be no survivors
