

Justify Your Tone

Wang Chung

It's been three weeks now
Since we left our tears at the check-in row
Just a kiss on the cheek now
I should have held you longer, but I let go
It's the strangest feeling
Coming home to wait for the phone to sing
It's become our world now
A big dial out code and a longer ring

Don't fly this low
It was a strange hello (I know)
But when I call back
Just say you love me

Justify your tone
Tell me you're alone
Keep things clear for me
Kiss my mind and dry my eyes please
Justify your tone
Tell me you're alone
Keep things clear for me
Kiss my mind and dry my eyes please

Break my falling
An empty chair sits in my mind
To my rescue
The sights around me hurts my eyes
And though i love you
It's hard to find that piece of mind
Fill my words in
There's an empty space between the lines

Don't fly this low
It was a strange hello (I know)
But when I call back
Just say you love me

Justify your tone
Tell me you're alone
Keep things clear for me
Kiss my mind and dry my eyes please
Justify your tone
Tell me you're alone
Keep things clear for me
Kiss my mind and dry my eyes please

Kiss my mind my eyes please (Justify your tone)
Kiss my mind my eyes please