

It's a breeze now, the summer's over
And we don't talk now 'cause you got colder
There's no scene now, the party's over
And the kids grew up with more burden to shoulder

There's nothing that should make me stay
But I can't get up and walk away
'Cause I'm too dumb to see
That you were never mine

What's the deal? Who's the lucky roller?
Such a good pretender—what's the fucking motive?
Spend your life trying to move the boulder
And then you grow up with nothing to show for

There's nothing that should make me stay
But I can't get up and walk away
'Cause I'm too dumb to see
That you were never mine

But that's fine
'Cause the sun shines in my room
All this time, they were laughing there at you
Never mind, it's alright
'Cause the sun shines in my room
There's no loving you
There's no love in you
And that's just the truth

It's a breeze now, the summer's over
And we don't talk now 'cause you got colder
There's no scene now, the party's over
And the kids grew up with more burden to shoulder

There's nothing that should make me stay
But I can't get up and walk away
'Cause I'm too dumb to see
That you were never mine

But that's fine
'Cause the sun shines in my room
All this time, they were laughing there at you
Never mind, it's alright
'Cause the sun shines in my room
There's no loving you
There's no love in you
And that's just the truth