

Different Galaxies

Wax

She was from the other side of the train tracks
A classic tale of Romeo & Juliet played back I was from the city, the inner parts
She was from the hills attending fancy dinner parties but still We managed to see each other I had a weekly bus pass
She has a mercedes c-class and trust it was much faster
I am a rapper she is a classic pianist
I sleep in boxers while she has a pair of fancy pajamas
When we're together both our social status don't even matter
We should just go to Nevada, get married and don't ever look back
She was the classiest, sassy, with a passion for fashion sense, smashin on any of those nasty ass hoodrats Uncomparable, but only if her parents approved, maybe they got something against asian-american dudes, just playin Either way I'm sayin its just terrible news, can't give you 14 karats but can serenade you with tunes

You and me, we are two stars from different galaxies
Will we cross or be aligned? I guess that we'll see in time

I swig on 40 ounces she sips on champagne, she has a huge backyard and I do the landscapin I get her single roses, she gets me laker tickets, call her on my prepaid phone when I can't wait to kick it We're quite the odd couple, but who are you to judge, I know it don't make sense, you can call it stupid love But its the whole world against us, they can try to stop us but we're going out like gangstas, I know that I'm hated by her camp
But I swear this'll end like the lady and the tramp, I'm just waiting for my chance
They keep saying that shes way too good for me, sometimes I wish h sugar momma was sugar free Cause I ain't in it for the dough, I ain't diggin for the gold,
I just wanna show all ya'll what both of us been knowin
I don't want any problems or any of her dollas, I just want ya'll to leave us alone and don't call us

You and me, we are two stars from different galaxies
Will we cross or be aligned? I guess that we'll see in time
You and me, we are two stars from different galaxies

Its the whole world against us, they can try to stop us but we're going out like gangstas!
