

Grasping Song (From The Hit)

Waylon

Another year again it's tearing you apart
Is it getting frightening 'cause you're already a star
To get wrinkles on your skin
While you could have been the one

Then tell me don't you find it hard to understand
Why things just didn't work the way that you have planned
Yet time is on your side
I bet you'd rather be someone

Cause you're a rocksteady one born on the Westside
A lucky one
And you've already won your battles won't be shattered by the sun

It may be far away it may be close beside
One day you suddenly come to realize
That these blisters on you're mind
They must have dried out in the sun

Cause you're a rocksteady one born on the Westside
A lucky one
And you've already won your battles won't be shattered by the sun

There is some suffocating mirrors on the wall
A gallery of all the times that you've been falling
But you never really drowned
Never really hit the ground

Cause you're a rocksteady one born on the Westside
A lucky one
And you've already won your battles won't be shattered by the sun

Cause you're a rocksteady one born on the Westside
A lucky one
And you've already won your battles won't be shattered by the sun
