The Iron Road

Widowmaker

You saw the beast of thunder Felt it's deadly speed Never were you so alive The spell that you were under You feld you spirits need Had to ride that iron horse.

Broke through stony mountain Laid that gleaming rail Suffered through the worst of times Pestilence abounded Your spirit never fails Worked until your body cried.

So go on my friend
You fought for the right
You lived by the rules
So when will it end
Through hunger and blight
Through rain, snow and night.

It's the iron road
That leads you on
But in the end
All of your hope is gone
It's the iron road
That brings you pain
And in the end
The iron road will reign.

As the years grew endless You saw your demons breed Gave into the darker side Driven to obsession To satisfy your need Had to ride that iron horse.

Oh why my friend
Men died in the night
You fought for their tools
So when does it end
You crawled for your dream
You stole, lied, and schemed.

At last the days upon you You'll ride those gleaming rails Climb aboard the iron horse Its majesty alludes you It's ceremony pales All you fell is cold remorse.

Oh ride my friend
So driven by spite
You broke every rule
Oh it never ends
You won't be the same
