

Forget It

Widowspeak

Was it yours if you needed to share?
I was dreaming of the ground from the air
Needed proof we were turning around
Came in for a landing, put the wheels down

I know your face better than my own
I knew it when we were talking close
Heard them, in low voices
And I took off away from the noise

It's lonely always looking down
Will you miss me when I'm not around?
It's too easy to misunderstand
So I'll take off, and I'll come in to land

Forget it
You know I want to
Forget it
You know I want to

We said the same thing, a few days apart
I drove the same old road in a rental car
House of dust and silverfishes
Remember me in the glow of the kitchen

Forget it
You know I want to
Forget it
You know I want to

Was it yours if you needed to share?
I was dreaming of the ground from the air
Needed proof we were turning around
Came in for a landing, put the wheels down
