

I still remember all those early moves
All the raw, raw fire and the timid proof of things we'd hidden or always knew of love Later I spent all those distant nights driving back and forth w atching your apartment light burning on and on and on I felt emptiness for real for the first time

Wait...

I'd wait...

For the scars to heal but they never went away
But I'd still give it all away, I'd still give it all away, If I ever get close enough I'd still give it all away, I'd still give it all away, If I ev er get close enough to you

I begged you to stay, even though you came home early in the mo rning
You showered and you cowered in the hallway and I knew that thi ngs would never be the same between us Yeah I was always trying just to change you, reshape and arrang e you
Into something neither of us recognized Somewhere I was trying to rewrite you in the lines of a bullshi t image with nothing in it

But wait...

I'll wait...

For the scars to heal but they never went away
But I'd still give it all away, I'd still give it all away, If I ever get close enough to you I'd still give it all away, I'd still give it all away If I eve r get close enough to you

Oh no... no matter how I reach for you Will I reach you now dear? Or will it ever be the same? Will it ever be the same...