

Too long
I hope you're doin' half as good
As you make it seem
I guess we moved on
Where there was us
And now there's you
And then, there's me

And now you walk right in
Like anybody else
But catchin' up, it ain't the same

'Cause now we talk like we never did
I'd rather not, just feels like it's scripted
Like, "How's your job?" I don't give a shit
I know you're more than that

Two kids
Ridin' out the summer
Playin' house
Now, things have changed
I guess we're old friends
Have you made up with your brother?
There's so much that we could say

And now you walk right in
Ask me, "How's your music been?
Save it, it's just me

'Cause now we talk like we never did
I'd rather not, just feels like it's scripted
Like, "How's your job?" I don't give a shit
I know you're more than that
I know you're more than that

And now it's small talk, small talk
And now it's such small talk, small talk
And now it's small talk, small talk
And now it's such small talk, small

'Cause now we talk like we never did
I'd rather not, just feels like it's scripted
Like, "How's your job?" I don't give a shit
I didn't know how much I would miss it

And now it's small talk, small talk
And now it's such small talk, small talk
And now it's small talk, small talk
And now it's such small talk, small
