

Offering

Wilder Woods

You turn to me so late at night
You tell me I'm so dignified
While I'm just trying to justify the means
You speak to me the sweetest words
Like poetry so much it hurts
I wish that I could let myself believe

Oh, you're the forest
When I'm the trees
You're the blanket that I drape over my knees
Holding on because you're just
So good to me

It ain't strong enough
But I give you all
I'm holding
My waking hours
My everything
Are yours to keep
Baby, I don't really know just
Where we're going
But I promise I'll never leave
I guess that'll have to be
My offering

I like it when you laugh at me
Stumble on a memory
Roll your eyes and smile behind the sheets
We're falling off a pace of life
We're trying to keep the numbers right
You're just out floating in the breeze

Cause you're the banquet
And I'm the thief
Stealing looks like all the boys out on the beach
Holding on because you're just too good to me

It ain't strong enough
But I give you all
I'm holding
My waking hours
My everything
Are yours to keep
Baby, I don't really know just
Where we're going
But I promise I'll never leave
I guess that'll have to be
My offering

All love is weight on your shoulders
Tall like the white cliffs of Dover
All of my days I will hold ya
Oh, I promise that I'll never leave
Holding on 'cause you're so good to me

It ain't strong enough
But I give you all

I'm holding
My waking hours
My everything
I guess that'll have to be
My offering
