

Deadbolt

Will Hoge

Leave the window open
Let the rain blow in
I drifted off for a minute
I ain't doing that again
My jacket's in the kitchen
I left my boots here on the floor
Everything that I was hiding
I ain't hiding anymore

Time's a lonely dancer
She keeps you on your toes
The holiest of answers
Is the the hardest one to show
But you just saw right through me
Like some hollow picture frame
Made something out of all this shit
That I thought was just a game

It's time to put that deadbolt on the door
Because I can't hold it all back anymore
All these broken little shadows on the floor
Well you just came and swept them up
And made me finally see
That maybe I could really be enough

You wander over to me
I hear you whispering my name
A perfect hallelujah in a sweet and slow refrain
Lonesome candle flickers
I watch you taking off your dress
The hardest part is over I got no sins left to confess

It's time to put that deadbolt on the door
Because I can't hold it all back anymore
All these broken little shadows on the floor
Well you just came and swept them up
And made me finally see
That maybe I could really be enough
Could I really be enough
