Witchcraft

When you called me I was deep underwater
Contemplating crossing that wicked dreadful border
Feeling more suicidal by the hour
Crazy woman, lovely borderline explorer

The first time I met you, you set my heart on fire
No one had ever talked to me like you before
And you said you loved me, and I said I want you
But please wait for me to come over

Mentally growing is like talking to my mother
About her children learning to walk by the water
And I looked over my worried shoulder
I really thought that I saw her

I'm not so sure
That you miss me at all
I was never sure
That you loved me at all

I was never sure
If you loved me at all
I was never sure
If you missed me at all

Ending terms slightly on a dark note
When heaven came knocking at my door I could not see it
On the other hand, I called you back and I said I need and believe in it
And I said I love you
And I said I always do
I really love you
I said I always do
