

Waterfall

With Confidence

This is a calling out for you
Through the deep Pacific blue
Hear my voice echo the waves
Pushing sound waves out to you
Will this make it to your room
Lit by a candlelight or two?

And in your sweet December haze
I had fell for love again
As the sand trickled into
A sadly hourglass of truth
Will it wash out with the days?
Will it hold within your grace?

Well, either way I'll remember you

This is a calling out for truth
Even when the tides are cruel
I hear your voice, I hear it all
I hear your currents pushing through
Will I make it to your room
Lit by a candlelight or two?

They say they watched us fall apart
But couldn't find us
They say they called it from the start
But couldn't guide us
They say they watched us fall apart
But couldn't find us

Well, either way I'll remember you

Find me at sea and tell me
Why you never loved me
'Cause I gave you my all
I had to watch you fall
And even in the darkest silence
I could hear and see your guidance
But now we've lost it all
I had to watch you fall
Down this waterfall

This is a calling out into
A void of everything we knew
My voice just soften in your gaze
A quiet break of one to two
I sat lost inside your room
Lit by a candlelight or two

They said they watched us fall apart
But couldn't find us
They said they called it from the start
But couldn't guide us
They said they watched us fall apart
But couldn't find us

Well, either way

Oh, I'll remember you

Find me at sea and tell me
Why you never loved me
'Cause I gave you my all
I had to watch you fall
And even in the darkest silence
I could hear and see your guidance
But now we lost it all
I had to watch you fall
Down this waterfall

To fall

They say they caught us in a daze, we were away
I never thought that it would change
But now you ruined all the waves
And the waves won't let them find us
They'll never find us

Find me at sea and tell me
Why you never loved me
'Cause I gave you my all
I had to watch you fall
