

Feel the wind and the earth by your feet
Time's creeping close, one last thing that you need
So far from here now, this cannot be me
I can make out your shadow from here

Throwing the words, but they don't make a sound
Watching them hit and then fall to the ground
Left all alone, there's no time for you now
I can make out your shadow from here

We're baked, all the flowers in that garden
All burning, sight over words to be wasted
Accept the body, you don't belong
Living a life with no trust
We're baked, all the flowers in that garden

And will I make it home safe?

Is the scratching and screaming worth all the bleeding
To find life amongst the hate?
Restore my sight, cast you into space
Leave the dead in the dirt, more than the hurt
Let the light shine on its grave
Restore my sight, restore my sight

And it's starting over
Again and again, again
And it's taking me over
Over and over

And will I make it home safe?

Is the scratching and screaming worth all the bleeding
To find life amongst the hate?
Restore my sight, cast you into space
Leave the dead in the dirt, more than the hurt
Let the light shine on its grave
Restore my sight, restore my sight

Restore my sight!
Where and when is the end?
Where and when is the end?
Where and when is the end?
Where could we start again?

I watch the waves crash, they all break the same
No matter where they start, they all roll away
I watch the waves crash, they all break the same
No matter where they start, they all roll away