

Our Last Goodbye

Wolverine

All is gray, the sun has died
No wind today, my breath aside
Our last goodbye, you turned into
A poisoned lie, I could not see through

Jaded hearts, fading beats
A life apart, a grand old start
Pouring rain followed him
Filled with pain from his domain

As I lie alone tonight
The sky allures in white
And I fly into the unknown void of silence
Leave the cries behind, I am free...
'Til I wake from my dream

Tonight I'll be there by my window
Watching the people below
So many stories of sorrow
So many endings to know
How come that I feel so alone
And that all that I see is my pain?

No one's there as I'm falling
A dying glare sees me crawling
Falling in love is the reason I live and I die
I wait... in silence I will rebuild my strength

Time goes by so fast
My love, we're now a memory
A memory I'll always keep safe
Moments in time look like raindrops that fall
On a windshield that travels a rainy night
Let it rain...

As I lie alone tonight
Leave the cries behind, I am free...
'Til I wake from my dream

Tonight I'll be there by my window
Watching the people below
So many stories of sorrow
So many endings to know
How come that I feel so alone
And that all that I see is my pain?

Millions are those who have spoken
Millions are those left unheard
Looking for that which was broken
Something not found in a word
How come that you seem so alone
Though you tell them he comforts your pain?
