

Lucky Stars

Written By Wolves

What are you thinking as you look up at the stars?
Are you trying to figure out how it turned out this way?
Remembering things play out so close and yet so far
And holding onto yesterday

You shouldn't need a song to save your life
The world should care enough for you to feel like you belong right here
But we all know that that's not right
So sing this song and know that someone out there cares

And this is not the end
'Cause if it was it would be all okay
And broken hearts can mend
And I promise help is not a million miles away

What are you thinking as you look up at the stars?
Are you wondering would they notice if there was one not there?
And tryna remember a time when things were not so hard
And you were not so scared

You shouldn't need a song to save your life
The world should care enough for you to feel like you belong right here
But we all know that that's not right
So sing this song and know that someone out there cares

This is not the end
'Cause if it was it would be all okay
Broken hearts can mend
And I promise help is not a million miles away

What are you thinking as you look up at the stars?
Are you counting your lucky ones that things turned out this way?