

I've Come Back (To Say I Love You One More Time)

Wynette Tammy

I've come back to say I love you one more time
I've come back to try to tell you one last time
When I was here before you were so unkind
So I've come back to say I love you one more time

The hometown team was losin' nine to three
An angry crowd was yellin' kill the referee
A stranger dressed man set staring at the fans
Got up and slowly made his way to the announcement stand

The announcer asks man what's on your mind
Do you wear that silly robe and sandals all the time
As a tear rolled down the stranger's cheek
He walked up to the microphone and he began to speak

I've come back to say I love you one more time
I've come back to try to tell you one last time
When I was here before you were so unkind
So I've come back to say I love you one more time

Half way round the world that very day
A young boy was hit by speeding car quickly drove away
As the little boy laid dead there on the street

The bearded man bent over and kissed the small child's cheek

Then the little boy get up and as started back to play
The stranger held him closer and said I love you be good and be on your way

The father of the boy just happened by Without asking any questions he laid out and cried
Hey crazy man you leave my son alone
In a fightin' raged beat the man till his heart was almost gone

Then he call the law and they took the bearded man away
But the next morning when they unlocked the prison's door
The stranger wasn't there anymore
But on the wall were some words that read

I've come back to say I love you one more time
I've come back to try to tell you one last time
When I was here before you were so unkind
So I've come back to say I love you one more time
I've come back to say I love you one last time
