

She was just sixteen, somewhere he'd never been.
Passion hides in strange places, sometimes where it's not so clean.
He was on his knees, she was there to please.
He can't stop it now, they have to satisfy their needs.
He feels all she needs , she knows how he feeds
Caution to the wind, who will be the one who bleeds?
His world feels remorse, their fate takes its course
Destined to fall apart, when all around are whores.
You know that life can be unkind
Your needs can be oh so blind
She hides behind her purity
She has to face reality
Life can be so unkind

Your needs can be oh so blind
There's only one thing you can do
So take her now before they do
He's lost his charm and grace, he takes all he can take
He must make a choice: a rock or a hard place?
She's blind to all his fears, he hurts to see her tears
And so succumbs to lust, his sighs are all she hears
You know that life can be unkind
Your needs can be oh so blind
She hides behind her purity
She has to face reality
Life can be so unkind
Your needs can be oh so blind
There's only one thing you can do
So take her now before they do