Damaged World

Yes

Come help us save, save this damaged world
Come help us save, save this damaged world

Paint me as a rogue or paint me as a child
The evidence of nature in the wild

In the light of what's been said
Am I the one who's most been misled
Never knowing where to stand
On the stormy sea or the shifting sand

Out across the wind blown shore
The sea so blue, white waves galore
Dreams so clear but almost lost
Over words either dotted or crossed

Not every story can really be told
So often there's more to unfold
About the times that shadows fall
It's now we heed, we heed the call

Come help us save, save this damaged world
Come help us save, save this damaged world

A valiant master of disguise
Runs amok, breaking the ties
Among friends we reunite
Lay to rest all the best to rest

Come and save this damaged world
Come and save this damaged world
Come and save this damaged world...
