Without even the flowing of tears
Without leaving even a trace of the days you spent here
It is goodbye

In the morning I welcomed by myself
The sound of someone that rings
In the room the two of us spent together
I was thinking with my eyes closed

Who's fault is it?
I don't know
It's no one's fault
Probably

No matter how many times, I'm sure
Yes, no matter how many years pass, I'm sure
It's just that we will end, together with a goodbye
I'm sure there is no other way
'Welcome home'
These words which dropped out without thinking
They sure are wrong

In the morning I welcomed by myself
Someone I think of suddenly
The ordinariness of the days the two of us spent together
Still remain

It's your fault
Is that it?
It's my fault
Probably

This is love popular among the masses too, right
That's the final answer, you know
We gradually became out of sync
That's also just a common story I've gotten used to hearing
Even in the days that shone to that extent

Dust continues to pile up

No matter how many times, I'm sure
Yes, no matter how many years pass, I'm sure
We are walking the path that leads to goodbye
I'm sure there is no other way
'Welcome home'
Just like usual
These words dropped out

Something like not being able to understand each other
I'm sure it's happened countless times
But it's fine because it doesn't mean we have to forgive each other for all of it
It's just that, if you feel the days of kindness to be bitter days
Then we can't go back, so...

No matter how many times, I'm sure
Yes, no matter how many years pass, I'm sure
It's just that we will end, together with a goodbye
I'm sure there is no other way
'Welcome home'
These words which dropped out without thinking
They sure are wrong

Even so, no matter how many times, I'm sure
Even so, no matter how many times, I'm sure
Yes, no matter how many years pass, I'm sure
'If only we can return to the beginning'
I end up thinking that, you know
'Welcome home'
To these words that dropped out without reaching you
You laughed
It's a slightly cold morning
