A story that was cut-off somewhere
Let's start our journey again
No matter how many times we have separated
You see, we will meet again

Goodbye to the conversations we had
Since then, how many sunrises have we seen since then?
At the end of the day
Is the beginning of another journey, and the day we meet again

As I await to meet you
My heart starts pounding
Whenever it rains, I look up at the sky where the sun hangs
And crossed the Colorful Bridge like that day

Here we are, meeting each other again
I want to stay connected with you forever
I've got so much to say, so much to tell
These thoughts can't stop pouring out
See? The knot between us can't be untied

Though urged by the passing seasons
At the end of this road
No matter how many times we have separated
If we are tied together as strong as knots
We will meet again

"Oh, where were we?"
We can't stop talking about the past
Whenever we remember those memory fragments
It can always fill up those missing times
We talk from day until night and the time passes by like lightning
Let's put aside tomorrow for the time being, and continue talking
Because it really feels like going back in time

I know a lot of things have changed ever since
But, right this day
We won't get bored of talking
Just like those good old days, hmm
Ba-ri-ra-ri-ra-ba-bi-ra-bi-ra

It was sunrise again when I realize
A faint of warmth touches our exhausted cheeks

And just like that day
We return to our daily lives

Hey! We might all have different paths
But without hindrance, we are illuminated by the same rising sun
And get together again

A story that was interrupted somewhere
We can rewrite it again
Things we want to say, things we want to say
Will fill every page of this book
Look, if you'd like you can refill them over and over again

The red sunset we have all looked up to
And the blue-like old times we spent together
These will not be forgotten, nor will they disappear
Just like budding green buds, we will meet again
Our story will still start from that white morning, so
"See you tomorrow"
