

Linger In The Rain

YonKaGor

Did my refraction fade away?
A thought that haunts me day by day
Like how the foggy air and morning tears
Dissolve into the atmosphere

Am I just a passing droplet?
Am I easy to forget?
Should I keep hoping for your warmth
Risk my heart in its brittle form and keep yearning in the storm?

'Cause whenever I choose to remain
To linger in the rain, it will always end the same
I'll mourn for your embrace, someone will surely fill my place
You'll leave me soaked in pain
'Cause that's how it all plays

Did I say something in the past?
Or were my problems far too vast?
And now my worries and my evening fears
Will be the one to interfere

Was I just a passing droplet?
Was I easy to forget?
Should I keep hoping for your warmth
Risk my heart in its brittle form and keep yearning in the storm?

'Cause whenever I choose to remain
To linger in the rain, it will always end the same
I'll mourn for your embrace, someone will surely fill my place
You'll leave me soaked in pain
'Cause that's how it all plays

Once I forecasted that someday I'd be replaced
This restless hurricane is all too daunting to suppress
So no more waiting, anticipating
I'll search for someone else

'Cause whenever I choose to remain
To linger in the rain, I endured a greater pain
I've fallen from your grace
I'll miss you, but the hurt's in vain

'Cause whenever I choose to remain
To linger in the rain, it will always end the same
I'll mourn for your embrace, someone will surely fill my place
You'll leave me soaked in pain
'Cause that's how it all plays

('Cause whenever I choose to remain to linger in the falling rain) 'cause that's how it all plays

(And I'll mourn for your embrace, someone will surely fill my place) whoa, oh, oh-oh, yeah

('Cause whenever I choose to remain to linger in the falling rain)

(I'll mourn for your embrace, someone will surely fill my place)

('Cause whenever I choose to remain to linger in the falling rain) oh, whoa

(I'll mourn for your embrace, someone will surely fill my place) oh-oh, yeah