

Sunburn

Young Rising Sons

I've been tryin' to stop and stay in the moment
But every now and then I start to think of the time (Time, Time)
Stayed up on the [?] fear for eyes 'cause it was broken (Broken, Broken)
You said that all the car headlights look like fireflies

But oh the lights they seem to fade (Fade, fade)
All that's left is a parking lot
Even the rats moved on (On, on)

And my summer faded
Autumn took us to different places
Never wanted to complicate it
But I'm still thinking about you
And the way you tasted
Funny how we go back to strangers
Just as soon as the season's changing
But I wanna get sunburned again with you
Oh
I wanna get sunburned again with you

Wanna show you how my new tattoo is finally healing (Healing, healing)
The one that you dared me to get
That stupid sailboat on my chest
Always knew that this glass room had a ceiling (Ceiling, ceiling)
That we couldn't break with our fist
No matter how hard we would hit

I know we're afraid to get too close
All you left was a note behind
Saying you hate goodbyes

And my summer faded
Autumn took us to different places
Never wanted to complicate it
But I'm still thinking about you
And the way you tasted
Funny how we go back to strangers
Just as soon as the season's changing
But I wanna get sunburned again with you
Oh
I wanna get sunburned again with you

It's the end of the summer
It's losing the color
Never wanted to complicate it
But I wanna get sunburned again with you

As it finally faded
Autumn took us to different places
Never wanted to complicate it
But I'm still thinking about you
And the way you tasted
Funny how we go back to strangers
Just as soon as the season's changing
But I wanna get sunburned again with you
Oh

Sunburned again with you
I wanna get sunburned again
Sunburned again
Sunburned again with you
I wanna get sunburned again
Sunburned again with you
(Sunburned again with you)
