

Heavy

Young Summer

I've been hiding on the east side of town
Clouded by feelings that slowly wore me down

I don't wanna know, I break every mirror that comes my way
There's no letting go, when you never find the words to say

Break through, break, break through to me
Break through, break, break through to me
I need you to come down
Can you help me out
Break through, break, break through to me

Hiding behind a laugh so no one else can see
This plastic choir is making such a mess of me

You don't want to know the lonely sound this silence makes
There's no letting go
Will I always have to feel this way

Break through, break, break through to me
Break through, break, break through to me
I need you to come down
Can you help me out
Break through, break, break through to me

Are you wandering like I am? 'Cause I am, I am
Are you running from it too like I do, I do
Are you, are you, are you

Break through, break, break through to me
Break through, break, break through to me
I need you to come down
Can you help me out
Break through, break, break through to me
