

waves

Zach Templer

It feels a life away to see your face again
I miss you everyday
It feels a dream away to feel your love again
I know you feel the same

I lay drunk I dream of your eyes
Won't you dance round my mind all night?
I'm too young, I can't make you mine
Have to wait for another time

It felt a life away to see your face again
But now you're in my bed
It felt a mile away to feel your love again
But now you can bite my lips instead

Just two kids didn't notice
Naïve to all that we wanted
Years passed, but thoughts didn't leave this Present, now we're in Paris
Late nights, champagne and showers
Drive by city lights a drunk kiss
Mascara smudged on your eyelids
Speak to me the colors of your iris

I lay drunk now I turn to your eyes
Now we dance round with wine all night
And I smile with a tear in my eye
We waited for the right time

Now that we're older
Sleeping bodies naked on sofas
Another life was this one it holds us
Feels a dream to lay on your shoulder
Resent the past but its over
The chance that we see eye-to-eye was low but
Another life was this one it holds us
Another life was this one it holds us